A third of Americans today have never interacted with their neighbors. It is important to build a more friendly and trusted community, which doesn't happen magically over the night. It usually occurs with a series of small actions over time. All it takes is a very simple "hi!" once in a while to foster small connection, which may be followed with a cup of coffee and a great long-lasting friendship.

It is important to share your story and encourage your friends to host a KYN gathering to turn their everyday encounters into meaningful friendships!

Please help us to spread your experience by sharing your story through social media (Facebook, Twitter, Instagram)
